Passenger screening

To increase traveler security it is important that all passengers leaving this country be (screened) at the screening point (prior to) boarding.

Five simple steps to get through passenger screening:

1. As you approach the screening point, there will be (bins) for you to (surrender) any weapons, (prohibited) items or liquids, aerosols and gels above the (restricted) amounts.
2. You will be asked to walk through a metal (detector) You may be asked to (remove) your shoes, your belt or other metal objects such as piercings that may cause an alarm to sound.
3. The screening officer will ask you to remove any metal objects and (place) them on the trays (provided) if the metal detector alarm sounds.
4. The screening officer will ask you to take part in a (frisk) search, if the alarm sounds again. If you want, you can ask for that screening to take place in a private room.
5. Airport metal detectors are quite (sensitive) to metals, this includes metal (implants) that may have been placed inside your body. These may indeed set off metal detectors, so let screening staff know if you have metal implants, such as (artificial) knees or hips.

If you (refuse) to be screened, you will not be allowed to board your flight.
