Module 1.8 Making appointments via email

LEAD-IN

Tell your teacher five advantages and two disadvantages of email over the postal mail, which is also called snail mail.

- What do you think about the following statements about emails? Do you agree?
1. One reason for emailing is to reduce the response time.
 2. If you need an answer straight away, it is better to use the phone than send an email.

➤ Email structure

The image shows a screenshot of an email composition window. At the top left is a 'Send' button with a paper plane icon. To its right are three input fields: 'To...', 'Cc...', and 'Subject:'. Below the 'Subject:' field is a large, empty text area for the email body. On the left side, there is a dropdown menu labeled 'Account'.

Reading/ Writing A

Read the following text and fill in each gap using one of the words in the box.

specify/ blind / recipient (s) / preceded / error / header / invisible / body / carbon

In an email, the, which is the full email message, is always by lines that identify particular routing information of the message, such as To, Cc, Subject, and other information about the email.

- To : The email address(es), and optionally name(s) of the message's
- Cc : stands for "..... copy." Anyone listed in the Cc field of a message receives a copy of that message when you send it.
- Bcc : stands for "..... carbon copy." This is similar to the Cc feature, except that Bcc recipients are to all the other recipients of the message (including other Bcc recipients).
- Subject : A brief summary of the topic of the message.

Note: To send a message, you must always at least one recipient in the "To:" field. If you don't, an message appears when you attempt to send the message.

➤ True or False Questions

1. One of the most important features of an email is the subject line.
2. Using the Cc: field is a great way to inform others who are not directly involved.

➤ Name each parts of the structure of the following email (A to F) and answer this question: Is the message in an informal register?

Dear Ms. Holmes → B

I'm just writing to thank you for taking the time to interview me today. It was most enjoyable to speak with you about the Assistant Account Executive position at ABC Advertising. You gave me quite a bit of insight about your organization and were very courteous and professional. I particularly liked the way you made me feel comfortable from the start. ↘ C

The creative approach to account management that you described confirmed my desire to work with you and my three years of experience as an Assistant Account Executive should help me to fill the position competently.

In addition to my enthusiasm, I will bring to the position strong writing skills, assertiveness, and the ability to encourage others to work cooperatively with the department. I would like to return for the next interview, if possible. My phone number and e-mail address are provided below.

I look forward to hearing from you. → D

Yours sincerely → E

★ Business Email Etiquette Tips

Reading/ Writing B

Read the following text and fill in each gap using one of the words in the box.

sign-off/ Salutation/ Typos/ spammer/ clutter/ caps/ register/ Opening/
Subject: field/ Cc: feature/ attached/ Conclusion

1. Level of Formality:

The of an email (how formal or informal it is) depends on the type of message you are writing and who you are writing to. If you are writing your business email to your client for the first time, the message would probably be more formal than an email to a colleague.

2. Attachments: "Please find the new price list." "Attached you'll find the new price list." Never send large attachments without warning, on weekends or after business hours when the recipient may not be there to keep their inbox clear. Business courtesy dictates you must ask the recipient first if it is O.K. to send a large file.
3. sentence: This is used to explain why you are writing. "I'm writing to inform you of our price increases for the next quarter." "Thank you for your order of April 5." "I'm writing to inquire about the new price list."
4. Closing phrase: Never forget to include a closing phrase at the end of the message. If the salutation is formal, the business email should be formal. Such phrases as "Regards"/ "Best wishes"/ "Kind (or Best) regards" are most commonly used close, good for both formal and informal emails. "Yours sincerely" is very formal and rarely used in email messages. "Best"/ "All the best" / "Take care" for friendly, informal close.
5. Signature files: Limit your signature to your name, position, company, phone number, email address, and Website address including the http://.
6. Don't overuse the This can the Inboxes of those you've contacted and expose their email addresses to each other which might cause a privacy infringement problem.
7. The is the window into your email message and can determine whether your email will be opened. Be sure to have a short Subject that indicates clearly what the topic of the email is., all or all small case can lead to the impression you may be.
someone who sends unwanted email (often in bulk)
8.: This is where you tell your recipient what kind of response, if any, you expect. E.g.: I look forward to hearing from you/ to your reply. Do not hesitate to contact us if you need any assistance.
9.: How do you address your new contacts? I would suggest initially that you assume the highest level of courtesy: Dear Ms. McNab, Dr. Holms, etc. Until your new contact states, "call me Jane" or "you can call me John".

- You, Pat Monroe, need to write a formal email for the first time to arrange an appointment with a prospective customer, Jane Jones, whose family owns a chain of health food retail stores in London. Look at the email below. What's wrong with this email? Find at least six things that make it so informal.

Hi Jane

I'm Pat Monroe, a distributor of health and natural food products and I'm writing to set up a business get-together from you.

I'm coming over to your city next week & wondering if you've got time for our meeting. I've got a bit of info about an exciting, new range of health and natural food products which you can sell at your store. :-)

Can we meet to talk about it pls?

Bye
Pat
